BETTING ON INCREASE AT ENGLISH RACES

LONDON, Nov. 4.—There is more betting than ever on horse racing throughout England, according to one of the leading London bookmaking firms, as though everyone was trying to make up for the war-time period when racing as well as betting was suspended.

"It is not only that more people are betting," said the head of the concern, "but they are wagering larger sums. The small man who used to have his 'tanner' on a race now risks his shilling or half crown, while the clubman who formerly was content to wager a sovereign now bets a five."

"I have been in business for 35 years, and I have never made such books as this year over the Derby and other classics."

"Another point about present day betting," continued the bookmaker, "is the number of women who back horses. Fifteen years ago I don't think we had a dozen women customers. Now we have hundreds. I don't know where they get their information, but some of the biggest checks we have drawn this year have been for women."

"They nearly always pay too, when they lose. Of course, we get an occasional defaulter, as we do among our men customers. But take them all around they are just as sporting over the business as any of the men we have on our books."

AMERICAN MEDICAL UNIT IN HEALTH WORK OVER PALESTINE

American Medical Unit in Holy Land Tells of Efforts to Further Plan of Sanitation in Judea.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—What the American Zionist medical unit has accomplished during the first year of its operations in Palestine is set forth succinctly in a recent article in the Palestine daily, Hadassah, Ha-Aretz, by Dr. J. H. Hahn, head of the body of nearly 50 physicians and nurses dispatched over a year ago to Palestine by Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization of America.

The American Zionist medical unit, which is supported by the Zionist organization of America and the joint distribution committee, began functioning in Palestine on Aug. 18, 1918. Summarizing the year's work, Dr. Hahn now makes a special point of those accomplishments of the unit which are of a permanent nature, and which have an important bearing on the constructive efforts for the establishment in Palestine of a national Jewish homeland.

These include:

1. Three hospitals (in Jerusalem, Jaffa and Safed).
2. Six dispensaries (Jerusalem, Jaffa, Haifa, Tiberias, Safed and Beheon).
3. Three bacteriological institutions (Jerusalem, Jaffa and Safed).
4. Two training schools for nurses (Jerusalem and Safed).
5. An organized sanitary division in five cities (Jerusalem, Jaffa, Haifa, Tiberias and Safed).

The work of the hospitals is necessarily limited because of the lack of adequate buildings. With the appropriation which the unit receives it can not undertake extensive building operations. Baron Edmund Rothschild placed his hospital in Jerusalem under the control of the unit, and the Rothschild hospital in Safed was also placed under the same control by the local government. In Jaffa the unit had to use a rented building. At the British consulate returned the medical unit had to evacuate. Another building is being erected for that purpose by Jacob H. Schiff, $10,000 having been donated. The Jaffa hospital is small, but the system employed there is most modern and in keeping with the latest methods of American hospitals. Practically for the first time in Palestine provision has been made for the proper classification of patients and for individual examination and treatment by specialists. The medical unit has founded the first bacteriological station, the first roentgen ray department, the first ward pathological station near the Rothschild hospital.

Clinic Work Popular.

The work in the dispensaries is continually developing. Heretofore, in Palestine clinics, one factor was the authority on all ailments. Now, however, everything is being done by specialists. The number of patients at the dispensaries was something less than 15,000 for April and in May was 22,700. Remarkable work is being done in the three bacteriological stations as established by the unit. In April, for example, 500 analyses were made. In May 750. Not only the hospitals under the control of the unit, but also private practitioners and private hospitals in order to make certain of the correctness of their diagnoses send specimens to the unit stations for analysis.

The training schools for nurses are regarded as perhaps the most important piece of work that the American Zionist medical unit has done. This work has the future in mind. It is felt that through these schools, with conditions which will be greatly improved, and in the presence of this work many Palestinian women will obtain employment. The school in Jerusalem is the largest, with 20 pupils. The number is expected to increase. It is the only school for nurses in the world where the students receive their entire training in Hebrew. The pupils of the Safed schools will be required to undergo a year's training in the Jerusalem school. As the pupils become proficient, the task of bedside nursing will be turned over to them. It is expected that within the next two or three years it will be come entirely unnecessary to send nurses from America and that the profession will become one of the recognized vocations of Jewish women in Palestine.

Sanitary Division.

The improvement of sanitary conditions in Palestine is a gigantic task, and the beginnings made in this direction by A. M. Z. U. are of no mean proportions. During the war much time and energy was spent in the struggle with malaria and other endemic diseases. The chief campaign of the sanitary division was against the mosquito plague.

Dr. Samuel M. Schmidt, one of the original members of the sanitary division of the medical unit who has recently returned to this country, says that as the British army moved northward in its last campaign the A. M. Z. U. sanitary squad moved up, taking over the work which previously had been conducted by the army sanitary section, thus saving what had already been accomplished and making further gains in the fight against malaria. A corps of native youths, including graduates of the Jaffa gymnasium, were trained for this work, first by the army and then by the unit's sanitarians.

No antimalaria work had been done in Safed prior to the arrival of the unit's sanitarians who found 25 per cent of the inhabitants were victims of the disease. Special difficulties were created for the sanitarians in the fact that so large a proportion of its population is Arabic and the idea of pouring kerosene oil into cisterns to make the water fit to drink was beyond their comprehension. It was only after the "mukhtars"—the semiofficial and semireligious leaders—were employed as assistant inspectors that progress began. Lectures were delivered to them with practical demonstrations of the effect of kerosene on larvae, and finally the lecturer drank some of the kerosene-treated water. These demonstrations convinced the "mukhtars" to such good effect that shortly thereafter Arab came to Dr. Schmidt's office to complain that the inspectors had not yet kerosened their cisterns. Another innovation that tended to make this work successful was the training of a number of young women as inspectors to meet the religious scruple of the Mohammedan women against appearing with faces uncovered before a strange man. In four weeks the mosquito infested cisterns of Safed were reduced from 25 to 5 per cent.

HUN FINANCIAL HEAD IS UNDER PUBLIC FIRE

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—Finance Minister Erzberger has been so assailed since under fire, he withdrew his plan of calling in all paper money, stamping it, and leaving it again, that the Berlin Political News Agency comes out with its explanation of why the scheme was abandoned.

The plan, says the agency, involved the surrender of about 10,000,000 marks' worth of notes of all denominations, and of course, was aimed at turning out of their hiding places the sums that had been saved up and "put into the stocking."

The task of enforcing the conducting and surrender and the physical work of stamping each of several millions of billions of bills meant a great deal of work for which men were not obtainable. More important perhaps was the further fact that for a quick redistribution of the money a large army of guards would be necessary to escort the new cash to every hamlet and small town in Germany. It would be impossible to send the money in any other way, and even under guard there was danger.

The agency cites the temptation which great masses of money bring, transported freely about Germany, even under guard, would be to the Spartacists and the communists, not to speak of the average German, with his greatly decreased morale since the war and the revolution.

The stamping of money and securities therefore can be considered as done away with, says the agency.

AMERICAN EXPLORER IS ON RIM OF NORTH

SEATTLE, Nov. 4.—An American explorer, Harold Niles, formerly a member of Vilhjalmur Stefansson's party, is working his way eastward on foot along the route of the northwest passage on the northern rim of the continent, according to word received here. He expects to reach the Hudson Bay country and civilization some time next summer.

Harold Stefansson, formerly second in command of the Stefansson party, arrived here recently from the far north, and that Niles, accompanied only by Eskimos, is proceeding westward, and reaching portions of the coast line as he goes. A stretch of the coast line of Victoria land, heretofore unexplored, is being charted by Niles.

Niles may visit the interior of Victoria Land, which, according to all reports, has never been explored by white men. All explorers, traders and travelers who have touched Victoria Land have only been on the shore. When Stefansson found the tribe of blond Eskimos in the Victoria Land country, Niles has no skin and but few supplies. He depends almost entirely upon his gun for his living. Stefansson, his former chief, who is noted among explorers as being able to live off the barren white lands of the north, probably taught Niles how to get about without carrying many supplies.

Niles' parents live in Seattle. The explorer is young in years, having graduated from a high school here about eight years ago. He went north in 1912 with Carl Louis Lane on the schooner Polar Bear. When Stefansson purchased the Polar Bear from Lane, Niles shipped as a member of the crew. Later, when Stefansson decided to return to the outside world, Niles left the party and remained in the north. His parents expect him to return to Seattle next year.
